SHELTON STATE LAUNCHES NEW PROGRAM FOR WELFARE-TO-WORK PARTICIPANTS

When 20 welfare-to-work participants entered an eight-week short training course at Shelton State Community College recently, it was a step in a new and quite different direction.

The course, which began September 8, is offered through Shelton's carpentry program and teaches students the construction finishing skills they need such as filling holes in the walls, putting up molding, preparing sheet rock for painting, applying vinyl to walls, correcting paint smudges, and wall papering. People with these skills do punch-out or minor touch-up work at the end of a construction job.

Most of the participants in the program are women from Hale, Greene, and Tuscaloosa counties. These women were placed in the program through the Department of Human Resources, who, as the funding agency for the program, provides transportation and child care for the participants.

A few students in this new program have been employed in minimum wage jobs in the past. According to Fran Viselli, who coordinates the program for the college, graduates of this short training course can go right into employment, probably making somewhere between $7 and $8 an hour.

Additional construction trade courses will be available to welfare-to-work recipients in January for those students who want to learn additional construction trade skills. These short courses would include masonry, plumbing, and residential electricity.

"We have other classes ready to include on the schedule if these courses are successful, said Dave Sanders, instructor for this new construction trades technology program.

SHELTON STATE TO HOST NATIONAL COSMETOLOGY ASSOCIATION MEETING

Shelton State Community College will host the National Cosmetology Association meeting for the Southeastern Division on Monday, September 21, from 1:30 - 3:30 p.m. in room 261-W of the new Martin Campus. Ken Harrison from Ken Harrison's Designs will be the platform artist and will feature new fall and winter hair trends.

AFRICAN-AMERICAN CULTURAL ASSOCIATION

The Shelton State Community African-American Cultural Association will hold its first meeting on September 23, at noon in Room D 1,2,3.

The sponsors are Jeanetta Hargrow, Fannie Bates, Sam Merriweather, Ronald Range, Gladys Hill, and Wanda Kemp. For more information, call 391-2213.

WHERE WERE YOU IN THE 70s?

This month's mystery lyric is:

"The first thing I met was a fly with a buzz,
And the sky with no clouds.
The Heat was hot and the ground was dry,
But the air was full of sound."

If you know the answer to this 1970s hit, call extension 2310 and leave your name, extension number, the name of the song and the artist! You have until September 17 at 5 p.m. to call in your response.

Good Luck!

SHELTON FORMS C³ CLUB

The Common Concerns Club (C³) is a new organization on campus whose purpose is to provide students with a means for holding organized discussions with other students. Discussions will range from balancing school, a full-time job and children to other challenges facing students today. Shelton Vice President Ted Spring will serve as the advisor, and Philip Coleman will coordinate club activities. Meetings will be held in the evening near the food court on the Martin Campus.
